AWAITING THE TROOPS.

The Situation of the Strike at Dunkirk, N BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 30,-A special

Evening News from Dunkirk says: "Is Dunkirk to be turned into another Hou stead?" is the question being asked by everybody today, and the consensus of opinion is that the presence of troops here is not necessary, for the present at least. So far none have arrived. Just why the troops were called for is not clear to the majority of people, as the strikers have not made any demonstrations. President Hineman of the Brooks locomotive works says that his notice to the sheriff that he feared an outbreak was simply a precautionary measure and he was simply a precautionary measure, and he was not aware of the action the sheriff took. He sincerely boped the emergency might not arise where troops would be needed.

The action of the Brooks people in asking for troops is a mystery to the strikers. WHAT THE STRIKERS SAY.

One of the leaders of the men said today: "We are not a mob; the majority of the boilermen have brains. We are not fools to make a riot here. We think the call for the guards is a bluff. If there was any trouble here you would not find any class of men who would turn in to preserve order quicker than would the boiler makers. If the Brooks Company think their property is in danger from us they are mistaken. They seem to think we are a gang of men plotting to commit violence, for they have sent Pinkerton spies among us. We aught one of them and he admitted he was a spy. We are not as bad as some people seem to think. We are after our other strikers expressed the same views regarding the call for troops. They say as far as they are concerned even the enrollment of Given His Decision. special policemen was entirely unnecessary. PROVIDING FOR TROOPS.

A member of Gen. Doyle's staff was here this provisions for any troops that may be sent Today the union depot, only 150 yards from the gates of the Brooks works, is crowded with men. A rush is made for all incoming trains, which are inspected as soon and even before they stop. The east end of the yards, near the rear of the Brooks works, where the trains have stopped twice to unload an invoice of workmen, quiet patrols of strikers are seen. It is evident the Brooks people cannot sun another lot of men into the works in the same manner as they did before without the strikers knowing it. All is quiet at the Brooks works. The special police are on duty and watchful for any move-

CAUSE OF THE STRIKE. The strike was caused by the riveters in the contractors named Kane and McNamara, alleging inhuman treatment on the part of the con tractors. They left the works without stating their grievances, which were printed afterward. The Ecenismy Globe (tory organ) says this evening that the annexation of Hawaii may result in bringing the United States into foreign suit in bringing the United States into foreign relations at variance with the whole of their traditional policy and cause friction and conflict between them and the English colonies. "American aggression in the Pacific," adds the Globe, "would occasion Australian remonstrance, to which the British government would be compelled to listen. The St. James Gazette (tory) says that President Harrison's cabinet would do well not to dent Harrison's cabinet would do well not to arrive at a hurried decision on the question of Hawaii. "It must not be assumed that because the United States have been nursing Hawaii they are best entitled to effective interference in the affairs of that country. The American party in those islands is by no means so strong as we are asked to believe."

The Pall Mail Gazette, now also a tory organ, is neutral in its remarks on the question of American annexation of Hawaii, and suggests that it would be interesting to see how the that it would be interesting to see how Americans would manage a colony.

Furthermore, the authorities at Bellevue Homital have taken other precautions to pre-Hospital have taken other precautions to prevent a spread of the disease. The patients in wards 2, 6, 17, 25 and 26, where typhus cases have developed, have been quarantined and no visitors are permitted to enter the wards. The rumor that the hospital itself had been placed in congrating by the health demandations in the context of th in quarantine by the health department is without any foundation.

Dr. Joseph D. Bryant said today: "There is no necessity for resorting to an extreme measure of that kind. The hospital is in good condition and we can receive all patients that apply without using any of these quarantined wards. Every precaution is taken and as soon as any patient develops symptoms of the disease he is removed to the tents, where a still closer watch is kent. closer watch is kept.

There is great excitement over the fact that a typhus fever case was found this morning in a tenement containing twenty-two families at No. 338 East 9th street. George Heimert, forty-six years old, is the patient. He was taken to North Brother Island. Heimert was a patient in the alcoholic ward at Bellevue Hospital, and while there mingled with men who afterward developed typhus.

RELEASE OF A MURDERESS. A Sensation in London Over Action by the Home Officers.

London, Jan. 39.—A sensation has been caused by the release, by order of the home office, of Margurite Dixblanc, the Park lane murderess, who was convicted in 1872 of the atrocious murder of her mistress. Madame

STORY OF AN ATROCIOUS CRIME. The crime was discovered on April 6, 1872. Madam Rial's daughter, who was e member of the French company then performing at the St. James Theater, arrived from Paris early on that morning, and on present-ing herself at No. 13 Park lane was informed that her mother was absent. It was soon dis-covered that certain doors were locked and the covered that certain doors were locked and the keys were missing and that the cook could not be found. This led to an examination of the house, when the dead body of Madame Riel was found in the pantry, opened with duplicate keys in the possession of the young lady. Her death appeared to have been caused by strangulation, as the tightened rope was still around her neck, though there were marks of extreme violence on other parts of the body. An examination of the safe-showed that the murder had been accompanied by the robthe murder had been accompanied by the rob-bery of gold, bank notes, French bonds and railway shares.

Suspicion at once fixed upon the cook, Margurite Dixblanc, a Belgian by birth, but some time resident in Verdun and in Paris for a short period during the reign of the commune. She was known to have been in the house alone with her mistress on the forenoon of Sun-day, the 7th, left it stealthily in the evening, and was traced as a passenger to Paris by the continental mail train.

A further clue to her movements there wa

Sieur Dubois that she expected to be in Paris soon. It had been misdirected to Rue Saint Denis instead of Rue Du Port St. Denis, and was in ordinary course opened by the post office authorities for the purpose of being returned to the writer.

On the detectives presenting themselves at the house of Dubois, Dixblane was found engaged in the task of measuring out charcoal and talking at the same time, it is said, of the hortalking at the same time, it is said, of the hor-rors of the Park lane murder. She sought to evade apprehension for a brief period, but in the end confessed having committed the crime, and even gave an account of the manner in which it was accomplished

La"I first tried," she said, "to conceal the body it by the feet, but being unable to drag it, I got a cord and passed it around her waist. Finding the body bent double I put it round her neck. At this moment the housemaid, who was out on an errand, knocked at the door. I sent her away for beer. Then I tried to drag the body upstairs, but could not, and hid it in the cellar."

Dixblane described the robbery as an afterthought, suggested, she said, by the keys falling from Madame Riel's pocket. Extradition treaties having been complied with, she was brought over in custody to London, and after yarious examinations committed for trial. the jury recommended her to mercy on the presumption that the murder had been preceded by a quarrel between Dixblanc and Madame Riel and was therefore not premediated. The authorities gave effect to the recommendation by commuting the sentence to imprisonment for life.

NORWAY IS IN EARNEST.

Extreme Measures May Be Taken to Se a Separate Consular Service. CHRISTIANA, Jan. 30.—It is believed that cabinet crisis is imminent on account of agitation for a separate consular service for Norway. The radicals in the Storthing, who have suffered the question to rest for some time, has resolved, it is stated, to refuse the usual credit for diplomatic expenses, thus rebuking King Oscar for his refusal to sanction a consular system separate from that of Sweden.

It is believed that this action on the part of the radicals will compel King Oscar to dismiss Steen, the radical premier, and will bring the consular question to an acute point as between the king and the Norwegian radicals. M. Stang, the conservative leader, is said to be willing to form a cabinet.

daughter and Dr. and Mrs. Maller. All the adies were heavily veiled.

The President, with Mrs. McKee on his arm, came next and was seated directly behind the honorary pallbearers. The others in the imme diate party were Private Secretary Halford and Lieut. Parker, the Vice President and Mrs. Morton, the Misses Morton, the Secretary of Morton, the Misses Morton, the Secretary of State, Secretary and Mrs. Elkins, the Attorney General and Mrs. Miller, Mrs. S. MR. WALTER DAMROSCH AT THE ORGAN. Before the service, while the crowd was entering the church the organist played soft sweet strains, improvising. With the party from the house came Mr. Walter Damrosch, and he entered the organ loft at once and seated himself at the organ. For the rest of the service he played and while the members of the family were being seated there was a reminiscence in the music of the hymn "How Firm a Foundation."
Then the music softly died away as the minister arose and began the reading of the service for the burial of thed ead. There was no singing, simply the reading of the Presbyterian form and a prayer, followed by the benediction. A TOUCHING AND BEAUTIFUL PRAYER.

In Dr. Hamlin's prayer there was nothing of sadness and little of regret. It was rather a prayer of joy, and hope and thanksgiving. It was a thanksgiving for the life and memory of the dead man and for all that he had done for the country, for the people and for his family. There was a strong note of confidence through it all, as when he "We thank Thee, Oh Lord, that we can come into the presence of death with such words of joy and confidence as those we have just read from Thy Holy Word. We thank Thee for Christian triumph as we stand at the side of the open grave. We thank Thee for what Thou hast made of Thy servant, whose mortal body we shall so soon commit to earth, for his intellect, for his culture, for his patriotism and his faithful and devoted service to his country in all times of her need. "We thank Thee, O Lord, for his firm faith in Thee and for his acceptance of Thee as his Lord and Savior. We bless Thee for his courage in times of sorrow and affliction and of bereavement and for his patience and heroism in the long days of his waiting for his end to Dr. Hamlin then asked a blessing upon the afflicted family, and prayed that they might look in hope and confidence not into an open grave, but into an open heaven.

"We invoke Thy divine blessing upon the ex ecutive branch of the government with which our deceased brother was so creditably con-nected, upon the President and all his advisers, upon Congress, in whose deliberations he so long participated, upon the community, the state in which he was born whose and the one that adopted him, upon the people of the land, who with such wonderful unanimity loved bim and with such pleasure heard his voice, now stilled in death. Bless we beseech Thee, all the lands of the earth which have felt his hand in diplomacy; bless this church, which has so long counted him as one of its own and with whose beginning he was connected, for he did not despise the day of small things. We bless and thank Thee that he accepted Thee and that he has sat here with us at the communion table."

The minister closed his cloquent prayer by reciting the Lord's Prayer, in which all the congregation joined.

At the close of the benediction which followed Mrs. Damrosch and her brother took one last look at the face of the dead man before the lid of the casket was replaced, and then all the congregation arose and re-mained standing while the pallbearers slowly and reverently raised the body, and, followed by the funeral party as they had come, passed out of the church while the organ played VIEWING THE FLORAL TRIBUTES.

The funeral cortege moved out Connectiont avenue to P street, thence along P to 28th street, and up that street to Oak Hill cemetery, entering by the southeastern gate.

For nearly two hours before the arrival of the funeral party people began to gather in throngs at the cemetery. Women and children formed the greater part of the crowd that came trooping down the muddy cemetery roads, through the walks and over the terraces. They peered curiously into the open grave, standing around it and eyeing the preparations for interment with morbid curiosity. As the crowd increased there was not room enough in the immediate vicinity of the grave and the people lined the terraces that rose above the Blaine burying lot, where they stood in the sloppy mud. Women with young babies in their arms were among the crowd, and young and old seemed moved by the same morbid spirit. A number of men with photographic cameras secured advantageous position scene of interment.

THE BLAINE BURYING LOT. The Blaine burying lot is in the extreme eastern end of the cemetery, overlooking Rock Creek. In front of the lot is a circular mound and rama as a background.

The first notification of the coming of the Dixblane described the robbery as an after-thought, suggested, she said, by the keys failing from Madame Riel's pocket. Extradition treaties having been complied with, she was brought over in custody to London, and after various examinations committed for trial.

The murderess was convicted to death, but the jury recommended her to mercy on the left, was lifted out and borne to the edge of the carriages drove up. Following these came the hearse bearing the remains.

The casket, almost buried under a bank of violets, was lifted out and borne to the edge of the grave, the Rev. Dr. Hamlin walking in front of it with bared head.

All heads were uncovered as Mrs. Blaine alighted from her carriage, leaning upon the arm of her son and followed by Mrs. Damrosch and Miss Hattie Blaine. They advanced to the edge of the grave and, leaning over, looked into it. Close behind them came the President with Mrs. McKee, Lieut. Parker and Mr. Halford, and following them were the cabinet.
